The ringing of exhibition rabbits has been a very satisfactory system for more than 60 years.

But in rare cases harm can be caused because of lack of attention to the rings

All rings should be checked every few days to ensure that foreign matter is not caught up in any ring and that the ring can be easily turned.

Rabbits that become over large for the breed (and hence the ring) should not be ringed, or the ring should be removed.

All rabbits that are sold as pets should have the rings removed before sale.

Provisional Members can only receive five (5) rings or tattoos until an Active Member.

It is your responsibility for correct numbering to go in the rabbits ear and also the correct ring size on the rabbit legs. (Refer page 11 of the 'Show Rules')
